

Remote Leading

1 to 2-day virtual training workshop for remote leadership

Why

Because leading at a distance requires enhanced competencies to provide orientation and establish stability in the team. Functioning communication, proximity and belonging despite the distance and, not least, ensuring performance in the various areas of work are just some of the challenging goals that leaders are pursuing in the current climate.

The concept

Our Remote Leading workshop provides the participants with a forum in which they directly tackle the challenges they face in their daily lives as leaders. Inspirational content input forms the basis, dialog and discussion enable them to transfer learning

Format

Compact, intensive workshop with input, peer-to-peer dialog on real-world issues and tools for daily working lives

Who for

Leaders at all hierarchical levels, leaders and their teams, departments, divisions

Contents

- Short content sprints on leadership issues
- Latest research and findings on remote work
- Special aspects of leading at a distance
- Tried and tested virtual tools and methods
- Peer-to-peer consulting and discussion on concrete issues

Remote Leading – from Stopgap to New Normal.

We now know that remote leading will remain a permanent part of our daily working lives. This opens up a wealth of opportunities but also poses a number risks for anyone who works in teams.

We shine a spotlight on these aspects, accompany you on a number of stages of the journey by providing you concrete solutions for the most relevant issues.

Information on organisation and program:

We do not deliver “off-the-peg” training workshops. Why not? What organisations need in order to meet the challenges of remote leading is heavily dependent on a number of factors, such as where they are starting from, the context, the technical requirements, as well as the degree of maturity of the employees and leaders.

That's why it is a good idea for us to talk: about the contents, the program and organisational matters, your individual needs and priorities. You set the goals and we design your workshop according to your specific parameters in order to achieve the best possible impact. We will continually provide you with a clear reflection of what works and what perhaps does not.
